"TO A WATER LILY." Edward Alexander Mac Dowell. (1861-1908-)

Edward Mac Dowell is the greatest composer the American continent has tory and in Germany. In 1881 he was head of the Darmstadt Conservatory of Music. He returned to the U. S. in 1888, and 1896 became Professor of music at Columbia University. He had an individuality in his composition, which although he received a ruly American. He wrote in all the larger forms, and his sonatas have been favorably compared with those of Beethoven. He ranks high among modern composers of whatever nationality, and his works are becoming more and more popular. Mac Dowel often wrote-beautiful tone poems for children. The little gem "To a Water Lily" is one of these from the collection of "Woodland Sketches." It is a produced. He was born in New York delightful bit of tone color and artis-City; educated at the Paris conservatic treatment.

"To a Water Lily" is absolute mu sic. It is a breath of the woods. The melody is quietly sustained, there is no ornamentation of theme, no showy should be heard for its sheer beauty.

unlighted and. ulet. The outlines chairs were ble here and there about the room and made it look temptingly restful. The table which stood windows-- was- not : untidy- but held several opened books and many letters strewn about a letter file. One of the large armchairs stood in front of the massive coal stove in which the blue finmes danced like litthe elves upon the red coals, defying heartily the howling wind outside, Some one seemed to have been present recently. The chair held a bath robe, the cord of which dangled carelessly on the floor, and the tassel of which rested upon an open letter be low it. Some one had been reading old letters and that person was cozily nestled in the bath robe. His tousled head of grey rested on the back of the chair. He was sleeping and certainly was having the happlest of dreams for a smile took possession of his face. The flames joined in the happy mood by dancing higher and faster. Even peaceful and happy hours have endings. Mrs. Bohnenstock had come quietly into the room and

"No, no, Helen," said the man without opening his eyes, "I am too old to dance and romp." "Helen? Whom are you talking of?

I do believe you have been dreaming," answered his wife. At the sound of her voice, he was ntirely awakened and arose from the chair. He singgered about before he regained all consciousness and his arms and legs ached from their ramped-position. "I guess-I've been dfeaming, Motly, it seems as though I'd been asleep for a whole year, Molly dear, why didn't you call me? My stock must be fed and it's way past feeding time now."

"Lo not worry about your stock, George. It has all been taken care of: John Uglow came over this afternoon and we talked about our Christmases when our boys were small. When it began to grow dusk, he said that I should not disturb you and that he ould feed the stock."

"Well, Molly, so you and John talked over the Christmases we had with our little boys," said Mr. Bohnenstock sinking back into his chair and beckoning his wife to sit on the arm of it.
"I am glad to see that others miss those beautiful holidays and the whole month before, when the air was full

"Oh, George, now I know what you were talking of when I came to wake said, running her fingers through his tousled hair. "Tell me-

"I was reading some of the letters from Henry, for I'd been thinking of him all day," began her husband.
"The last letter I read was the one we got from him last year just before and Jane were planning Christmas for the youngsters, and how he hoped that another year he would be home with I sat here recalling the many Christmases you and I had planned for our children. Molly, do you re-member the year we had the Uglow boys over for Christmas eve?" he excitedly continued, half rising from his chair as the happy past came back to his mind in jumbled snatches. "I can see them now, the four boys and two girls sitting around this very stove, telling the Christmas stories which they had learned in school. Then, how their eyes bulged and their mouths pened when Santa come into the room. The children danced with glee, but the girls were a bit timid. The boys, however, were real chummy and saked Santa many embarrassing questions about his trips,

All this he said slowly, pausing now and then so that he could live it over again. He looked up into Molly's face, for she had been very quiet, and there he saw big tear drops rolling slowly down her thin cheeks which now showed a delicate pink flush. "Well, well, Molly," began her hus

"Don't, George, I know it's foolish have a tree and children to fuss for. Christmas comes and goes now without much excitement and it makes me feel as though I'm getting awfully

"Molly, let's have a tree and we will get ready for Christmas just as we did long ago."

The next morning, the happy couple took a trip to the woods to choose a tree. By the twenty-second of De-cember, all the things were finished. George found Molly sitting before the fire looking very sober. "Molly, why do you look so blue?

This is the time for everyone to be happy."

"I know it, but, George, I think our fun is over. All our planning is done and we have no one here to enjoy it. No children's voices to sing the lovely Christmus songs, Oh, I shall miss it, she said sobbing.

"We still have three days in which to find children. We are going to have a Christmas just as we want it I feel

The next night, they again were before the stove. Both of them were deep in thought, wondering and hop-ing. Both of them started when the telephone rang, breaking up their thoughts. George answered and was astonished when he heard a telegram read to him. He hung up the rec with a slam and ran over to Molly. threw his arms about her, picked he up and carried her around.

"George, tell me about it has happened?" ...
"Molly, I can't talk, I'm so happy.

mas on the farm. Arrive on noon tomorrow. Henry."

Now Molly took her turn in rejoic face was pink and her eyes sparkled like an overloved child's, "We must get the toys ready for the children, she said, and immediately went off to make a new dress for a doll.

The next noon, George and Molly were standing on the station platform trembling with excitement. standers could tell that something un usual was happening for the old per ple. Finally the train came.

Helen. Where is Henry?" cried Molly. and he picked her up and kissed her.

That afternoon, the big doors to the dren suspected nothing for they were busy exploring the farm

In the evening after they came from church, the doors to the living room were opened; the children were so happy that they danced about the tree and excitedly grabbed one parce after another. In their excitement they could not untile the packages so their father and mother and grand parents were called upon to Helen came to her grandfather with all of hers, but Junior was not so par tiul. After the children had seen all their presents, and the others had exchanged theirs, Helen and Junior sang songs and spoke Christmas pieces.

After the candles were lighted, lit tle Helen came tripping over to be tree with me and my dolly, Grand-

TRIBUTE TO THE LEGION MEN

New Orleans Times-Picayune Praises Conduct of Visitore During the National Convention.

New Orleans is proud and glad to have had the opportunity to entertain the American Legion national convention and heartily congratulates San Francisco upon its capture of the honor for 1923, according to an editorial in the Times-Picayune, a leading New Orleans newspaper, printed several days after the departure of "The Legionnaires as a body earned the good opinions even of those few anians who because of rumors of misdoings at Kansas City were slight ly prejudiced against the gathering the editorial states. "Throughout American Legion week good humor and good order prevailed. The rare instances of minor rowdyism or ruffianism served only as exceptions going to prove the general rule of splendid behavior—and of these exeptions some, perhaps the majority, were chargeable to who took advantage of the Legion festivities to misbehave in the hope that their offenses would be charged to the visitors' account. In so large an asevil-doers are almost invariably found but the careful work of the Legion officials and the local police simply restricted the activities of these undesirables.

"Of harmless 'high jinks' there was of course, a joyous abundance. New Orleans, with its carnival traditions, shared in the fun of it all and rejoiced in the hilarity which testified that the lads of the Legion were having a good time. Of wanton offense and of malicious mischief, American Legion expressed by the Times-Picayune last Saturday morning—that the Legion-naires would carry to their homes recollections of the convention as pleasant as those they leave with us' came straight from the heart. In a previous editorial the Times-Picayune stated:

"The American Legion convention closed yesterday afternoon will be long and pleasantly remembered by New Orleans. SANTA CLAUS ARRIVES

The children of a school were having a performance for parents and vis-itors during the Christmas holidays. Oh, it was a very fine performance There was plenty of music to begin

The singing was lovely and the recitations were very fine. Some of the very small children who recited could not pronounce very well, but that didn't make much difference. They were so cunning.

And when some of them forgot to nake their bows some one from be-hind gave them little pushes so that they made their bows then.

A play was given, too, and that was very fine, and everyone looked so handsome in costume.

The very naughtiest little boy of all took the part of an angel, for when his face was still and he wasn't up to any prank he did have quite an angel-

And at the end of the performance was told about that Santa Claus vas going to appear. Oh, what excitement there was.

"Santa Claus is coming," every one id. "Santa Claus is coming." And then they walted and they heard the wind outside. Yes, a wind was blowing up and it was beginning to snow hard.

They did hope Santa Claus would not lose his way in the storm.

But then they were comforted in many controller—orphaus—as I can with misfortunes or have lost their they were comforted in stuff into it.

Oh, how excited everyone was. The sound of the bells came nearer and nearer and nearer. The sleigh could not be far away now.

Then some one called out and said: "Let's turn out the lights so we can see him coming up the steps of the building."

So the lights were turned out and the great room was in darkness

And then they heard a stamping and a pounding, and down at the foot of steps stood Santa Claus.

Childrens, Misses and Ladies underwear. Note

Frank Dreese Grayling

I have made up my mind to close out my stock for the reasons described below. By reducing the stock to the desired limit, I have a prospective buyer. This stock was well selected when I started the new store. I have been to the market where I have made some good selections to fill in at this time, and purchased way below the early market price on broken lots. You will be surprised. In order to make this store attractive for Xmas and holidays and with good cheer. I have selected some very good numbers in the various lines of toys and dolls that will help interest the children. It will cause you to remember this Xmas at this store, af

This closing out sale will start Tuesday, December 12th, and will last until the stock is closed as stated above. I have secured extra help. Carefully note the prices made and come to this store early so you will receive the benefit and will not go away disappointed. Remember that this is a cash sale and no goods will be let out on approval. Watch for the big sign over the window and it will surprise you to notice how the goods have been bunched with big cards ready to reach and take in a moment's notice. Notice positively this store will be closed all day Monday (December 11th) to prepare for the sale.

No Strings To This. anything directly or indirectly. He ling where people have always treated me well.

Why Now?

We have Mr. Shaffer now because so many people order flowers, trees and shrubs during the winter for spring planting, and so many order misfits, and some do not order for fear that they will not get the right thing.

Mr. Shaffer will tell us now what to order when we are ready.

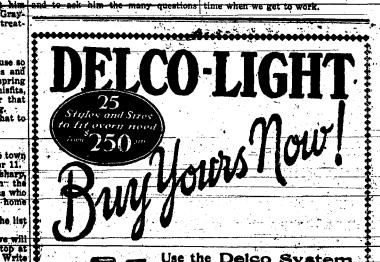

The Plan.
Mr. Shaffer and I will look the town over Monday afternoon December 11.

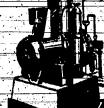

Monday evening at 7 o'dock sharp.
Mr. Shaffer wants to meet, in the Board of Trade rooms all citizens who are interested in beautifying home

menting for excession excession consessions

Thirty people have already applied.

you may want to ask about insect pests, and plant troubles, for we will Come, everybody, to the Monday positively not have time to stand out vening meeting to meet Mr. Shaffer, in the cold and attend to that and lose time when we get to work.
